The Culture of the New Capitalism Sennett Richard

Richard Sennett's short book, The Culture of the New Capitalism is based on the Castle lectures in Ethics, Politics and Economics, delivered by him at Yale University in 2004. In putting the book together, Sennett was primarily responding to an invitation from Yale University to pull together his work over the past years in order to describe the culture of the new capitalism.

The Culture of the New Capitalism Richard Sennett

Sennett argues that, in banishing old ills, the new-economy model has instead created new social and emotional traumas. Only a certain kind of human being can prosper in unstable, fragmentary institutions: the culture of the new capitalism demands an ideal self oriented to the short-term, focused on potential ability rather than accomplishment, willing to discount or abandon past experience.

In this provocative book Richard Sennett looks at the ways today's global, ever-mutable form of capitalism is affecting our lives. He analyzes how changes in work ethic, in our attitudes toward merit and talent, and in public and private institutions have all contributed to what he terms the specter of uselessness, and he concludes with suggestions to counter this disturbing new culture.
